Victoria:

Could you please send me a Word or Word Perfect version of your Joint Case Management Statement so that I can edit it? I will put redline edits into your document so that you can see all of the changes I make.

Thank you,
Scott

Gentlemen,

The draft case management statement is on your fax machines. Please give me the text, and the location it should be added, that you want included in the statement.

Mr. Zeff, I changed your suggested further CMC date. The judge isn't hearing motions in November, so I moved it up to Oct. 27, and also stated that would be a date we would have heard any new motions to dismiss, and other motions.

Regards,

Victoria Hall

Dear Victoria and David:

Attached please find a draft joint case management statement for your consideration in Word format. Please incorporate any edits using the "track changes" function on your Word processing program so that I can easily see all of the redline edits.

Please endeavor to send your suggested changes to me by this Wednesday so that we can submit the final document by the Friday deadline.

Also, I believe the discovery schedule could be a bit more detailed and I plan on developing that a bit further this week.

Regards,
Scott

Victoria:

Please let me know what you disagree with in the statement.

If you have alternate dates for proposed activities, please present them to us so that we can come to some sort of agreement on scheduling matters.

If you refuse to engage in the drafting of the joint case management statement, then we need to each file our own separate documents, not one document with two entirely different sections.

Please let me know.

Scott

Scott,

It's a little late notice re Friday, but if your section is presented the way you want it presented, then that's all that matters. I disagree with it, and so I will have my own section. If you're ready to sign off on your section, then let me know. I'll file it as is.

Thank you David,

Just an FYI, I will be out of the office on Friday, so I would like to wrap this up on Thursday if possible.

Dear Scott and Ms. Hall:

I have made small changes to Scott's draft CMC Statement, which are shown as turquoise in the "track changes" version attached hereto. I am in depositions the next three days but will respond to emails on the completion of this document in the evenings.

Sincerely, David M. Zeff
